July 15th,
St. Bonaventure,
Bishop and Doctor

Today's saint was a person exceptionally gifted in soul, intellect and personality. Born in north Italy around 1218, he was early attracted by the Franciscan ideal. An outstanding student, then a professor at the University of Paris, he taught and wrote profoundly about theology and philosophy. Bonaventure, elected Minister General of the Franciscan Order, was named Cardinal of Albano in 1273. He took part in the Second Ecumenical Council of Lyons-which arranged a short-lived union of the Greek and Latin Churches-and died in Lyons, France, in 1274.

July 21st,
St. Lawrence of Brindisi,
Priest and Doctor

Baptized Julius Caesar Russo at Brindisi in Italy, Today's saint was a true general for God. In 1575, age 16, he entered the Capuchins and dedicated his many talents to the Church of that Reformation century. A born orator, Fra Lawrence studied to become cultured and conversant in French, German, Greek, Syriac and Hebrew. As a worker in the Catholic Renewal he preached throughout all central Europe, campaigned against the Turks in Hungary, was an able diplomat. He died at Lisbon in simple goodness (1619) and was canonized a saint in 1881.

Pro-Life Corner:

July 21st - It's only since the decriminalization of abortion that the push for euthanasia has been born. We are seeing the slippery slope, predicted by the pro-life movement many years ago.

He who does justice will live in the presence of the Lord.
